

December 09, 2008

Lavender Alphabet Soup

Thought I'd share two fab new kiddy products that have recently come my way:

This little cutie is from the Sonoma Lavender company; a family-run farm in northern California where crops are grown and scented products are created for adults and children. If you'd like a mini vacation, read about their idyllic location and family philosophy here.

You probably already know that lavender encourages relaxation and restfulness; our daughter loves this mildly-scented, cuddly lamb whom we've dubbed, "Lily the Lamb" in her honour. You can heat up the lavender sachet stored inside but we haven't done that; I'm pleased with the light scent. The stuffed animals sell for $30 U.S. and you can purchase them via the Sonoma Lavender web site, linked above.